

MacDONALD LOOKS WITH FAVOR UPON PROPOSED WELCOME

Planned to Leave for Washington Immediately, But

TO ARRIVE ON FRIDAY

Distinguished Premier Spends Most of Time in His Deck Chair

ABOARD S. S. BERENGARIA, (Via Radio to INS)—Oct. 1.—While no official invitation has yet been received, Premier Ramsay MacDonald would be very happy to accept a typical "Broadway" welcome by the people of New York City, it was stated today by his private secretary, Sir Robert Vansitart.

Reports of a reception being planned by New York have been received aboard ship, but no official indication has been made that would result in a change of the Premier's original plans.
He intended to leave for Washington immediately upon arrival in New York. But, according to Sir Robert, the Premier has always been greatly intrigued by the storm of ticker-tape and other evidence of enthusiasm New York showers upon its visitors from overseas, and would not be averse to being on the receiving end of such a reception if New York wishes to accord it.

According to present indications, the Berengaria will arrive in New York Harbor about noon on Friday.
Premier MacDonald continued to spend most of his time sitting in his deck-chair, reading or walking the deck. His daughter, Miss Ishbel, however, mingles freely with the other passengers and dances every evening.
She is principally concerned with keeping her distinguished father comfortable and contented, but has found considerable time for the gay social life aboard.

ROSH HASHANA—THE NEW YEAR

Beginning with Friday evening, October 4, 1929, Jewry the world over will usher in the festival of New Year, known in Hebrew as "Rosh Hashana." Reform Judaism observes this holy day, as specified in the Bible, for one day; while Orthodox observes two days. With the celebration of the New Year on October 5th, the Jewish people will open the year 5690 of the Hebrew calendar. Unlike the New Year's Day of January 1, the Jewish New Year's Day is a religious occasion of great solemnity.

In ancient days, when the Jewish people lived in Palestine and agriculture was his chief occupation, the Hebrew New Year's Day marked the opening of the economic year. It occurred in the beginning of autumn, because the season of the sowing of seeds began with the fall. This system of the agricultural cycle of the year was used by all Semitic peoples.
The Bible, however, does not refer to this festival as the New Year's Day, but the Jewish people, no doubt, considered it as such at a very early date.
In the days of the Temple, they observed this day by abstaining from all labor, by bringing special offerings to the Temple of Jerusalem, and by blowing the Shofar—the ram's horn.

With the exile of the Jewish people from Palestine, the agricultural and economic background disappeared.
The Jews, however, continued to observe the New Year's Day by attaching to it a purely religious significance and endowing it with a most significant spiritual value. New Year's Day came to be the day upon which God had created the world. The Rabbis, therefore set it aside as the day upon which every human being and every living creature pass before God's judgment seat. For this reason, the Jewish New Year's Day has been called the Day of Judgment. This idea gave rise to an elaborate liturgy and ritual which were to awaken man to the message of the Day and bring him to the state of repentance.

With the coming of the modern era in Jewish life, this idea of the festival of New Year as a Day of Judgment has been greatly developed. Self-examination, self-criticism, repentance, and reconciliation with men and God became the chief values of this holy day; they are especially dominant in the Reform Jewish liturgy.

Attempt to Check Amount Of Damage Done by Storm

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 1.—(INS)— With telephone communications to the east of this city still disrupted, efforts were being made today to check up the damage done by the 100-mile an hour gale which swept in from the Gulf of Mexico late yesterday.

While the main force of the storm, born of the tropical hurricane which has harassed various sections of Florida for a week, passed to the east of Pensacola, residents of this city were frightened by the terrific gale which whipped in from the Gulf and caused some damage in the shore section.

Water backed up in the harbor under the force of the wind but receded before serious damage was done. A number of trees were uprooted and telephone poles blown down, but Pensacola escaped the heavy damage which had been feared ever since the hurricane struck a northerly course and headed for the Gulf Coast.

American Fire Losses Eleven Times Greater Than Those of Europe

On an average of once a minute, day and night during the entire year, the fire siren is heard in America as apparatus rushes to a burning structure. Follow the engines to the column of smoke or flame and what is found? An alarming number of times, firemen are attempting to subdue a stubborn fire that has already spread considerably and damaged much property.

It is interesting to compare this condition with that found in Europe. Figures giving the number of fires there are not available, as statistics are not as completely prepared as in America, but if the total annual fire loss of all European countries is compared with the American total, which reaches almost a half-billion dollars, it will be found that our losses are eleven times greater than those of Europe!

Why is this the case?
The answer will be found in this: the majority of fires in Europe do not spread so rapidly. Their buildings are so constructed that as a rule flames cannot spread far from the place in which they started before the fire apparatus arrives.

How is this possible?
The first step must of necessity be taken by the architect when he is drawing up plans for the contemplated structure, for buildings must be erected in accordance with the plans. Then, too, Europe uses more incombustible materials and it is suggested that American builders should make greater use of fire resistive materials.
As an aid to confining fire near the place of origin, each floor can be cut off from that directly above and below by the means of fire stops in the walls and by the use of metal lath; this also applies to the various sections of a structure. Then the flames cannot easily be communicated through walls or partitions.

A large percentage of the fires in America originate from improperly constructed chimneys; they should be built so they will not crack, and lined with fire-clay. Great damage is also caused when the wind carries flaming brands to wooden shingle roofs.
Incombustible roofing material will prevent such fires.

Specifications for approved types of building construction are to be found in the Recommended Code of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, but the burden of building to prevent the spread of fire rests on architects, contractors and owners. When America learns to build as Europe does, firemen responding to an alarm will more often find the flames confined to one room, or possibly one section, of a structure. The occupants of other sections will then have increased opportunity to escape uninjured and the resulting property damage will be greatly curtailed.

Fire Prevention Week, October 6th to 12th, proclaimed by the President of the United States for national observance, affords an opportunity to all residents of Bristol and vicinity, to clear all premises of fire hazards and to aid in the reduction of fire in this community.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—(INS)—
"The Orchards," the beautiful 40-acre tract estate of the late Carrol R. Williams, well-known attorney, near the artist's colony at New Hope, Pa., is to be kept intact under the terms of his will as probated in the register of deeds office here.

The estate, which attorneys believe, will amount to a half million dollars, is left to his widow, Leonora, a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Lathrop, of Duluth, Minn., two sons, John S. and Carol Jr., and a sister, Mrs. Agnes W. Harley.

The estate has been in the Williams' family since the days of William Penn.
Mr. Williams in the terms of his last testament did not expressly order that "The Orchards," he kept intact but expressed the wish that his relatives would continue to hold them. If however, it become burdensome, they are given permission to dispose of it.

STATE MAKES STRIDES IN MANUFACTURING PLANES

Reports About of Proposed Plants for Building of Aircraft

MANY BEING ENLARGED

By Francis L. Armstrong
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

Turning its mighty industrial facilities toward aviation, Pennsylvania today showed indications of rapid strides in manufacturing planes which would place it in the front rank of the industry.

From a half dozen different districts in the state came reports this week of proposed plants for building planes, utilizing the natural resources and the strategic situation of the State as a working basis. The most important of these projects centered in Pittsburgh, where announcement was made that three plants were being brought from West Virginia. With the backing of powerful cooperative groups, including the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, these three factories were expected to give Western Pen-sylvania an impetus in the race in Pennsylvania in this comparatively new production field.

In the eastern section of the state, new additions to the plants of the Pittsburgh company had increased producing capacity both in standard and auto-giro planes. Other companies were reported planning increases in equipment for production. At Easton, New York interests have been negotiating to take over the S. Flory company plant for making airplane engines, according to Willis A. Flory, general manager. Six hundred men would be employed here and a new test field would be constructed.

At Shamokin members of the Aero club and business men met Friday to consider plans for organizing a corporation to manufacture and repair planes. The Kreider-Reisner Aircraft company announced an increase of $232,225 in capitalization for increased manufacture of the Challenger plane, at the Hagerstown plants.

With entry of the United Aviation and Transport corporation into Pennsylvania, it was expected further developments would be made in the Pittsburgh district with Standard Steel Propeller company, of Pittsburgh, a subsidiary.

Another ambitious airport project was brought officially onto the list in Western Pennsylvania Friday when Pittsburgh Aviation Industries spent $25,000 on dedication of the Pittsburgh-Butler airport. Airport dedication is getting to be almost a contest in the state, according to figures on expenditures at recent openings, and the Pittsburgh-Butler opening was a leading celebration. Arrangements had been made to handle crowds of 50,000 each day of the two-day air regatta. The usual bevy of prominent aviators aided in a brilliant program.

"Bob" Clokey, chief test pilot of Fairchild's Airplane Manufacturing Company at Hagerstown, deserted that branch of the industry and will become chief pilot of the Pittsburgh-Greensburg Airport, according to announcement of officials of the Main Aeronautics Company.

Activities at the new factory owned by the company headed by Martin Jensen, distance flyer, at Lehighton were reported increased this week.

MANY WHITE-TAILED DEER SHOT IN STATE

700,000 Hunters Wander Through Pennsylvania
Each Fall

GAME IS PLENTIFUL

Over seven hundred thousand hunters wander over Pennsylvania's fields and woodlands each fall. During 1927 over fourteen thousand fully antlered white-tailed deer were shot in Pen-sylvania as game; and last year over 25,000 antlerless deer were taken.
About three million cottontail rabbits found their way into the larders of Pennsylvania housewives. Thousands of plump ring-neck pheasants, bobwhites, and ruffed grouse were carried home in the bulging pockets of healthy hunters who rejoiced over an opportunity to get away from their offices for a short time during the most colorful season of the year. A brief glance at Pennsylvania's game-bag makes it appear very much as though we can "eat our pie" and at the same time have it too.

A careful study of the history of this Commonwealth's wild-life conservation program shows, however, that the present supply of game has meant the expenditure of much money, the work of hundreds of men devoted to a worthy cause, and the foresight of early conservationists who realized that early hunting methods were leading to an extermination of game.

Forty years ago Pennsylvania was "shot-out." Market hunting had gone on so extensively that deer were on the verge of extermination. Forest fires had destroyed birds and animals and wiped out their cover. Civilization had driven the wilder animals and birds into the recesses of the mountains. After decades of pursuit by Indians and frontiersmen, buffalo had receded to the great plains. Packs of gray wolves and solitary panthers, which formerly ranged our woodlands, had disappeared. Hordes of passenger pigeons, which once darkened the sun while passing in migratory flocks, had all but disappeared. Only a vestige of the splendid, pristine assemblage of wild birds and animals remained.

By 1890, a few men in Pennsylvania realized that drastic measures would have to be taken if our wild-life was to be saved. In 1895, by act of assembly, the Board of Game Commissioners was established. In 1896 these six men, who were appointed by the Governor, who were to serve without any salary, and who were, therefore, free from any political entanglements, met for the first time to discuss a wild-life conservation program for Pennsylvania. Their first moves were directed toward the stopping of market hunting. Too long had the Pennsylvania markets been so glutted that innumerable carcasses had to be burned; too long had freight cars, loaded with barrels of passenger pigeons, been leaving the Pennsylvania mountains for Chicago and New York; too long had infernal cannon-guns been wiping out flocks of ducks along the lower Susquehanna and Delaware rivers. A law passed on June 4, 1897, stopped the chasing of deer with dogs. At the same time the first definite attempt to stop the sale of game was made.

The Board, shortly after their in-

ITALIAN CHAPEL ORGANIZED INTO REGULAR CHURCH

Official Name of "The Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour" Given

MANY ATTEND SERVICE

Six Are Received Into Membership; Session Is Named

The official name of "The Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour" was given to the Italian Presbyterian Chapel of Our Saviour last evening, when a service was held for the purpose of organizing the chapel into a regular church.

The program took place in the main auditorium of the church, and many members of the former chapel, as well as friends from other Bristol churches and from out of town attended.

The charge given to the people after the forming of the church, was by the Rev. Nicholas B. Caterino, pastor of the Italian Presbyterian Church, of Norristown, this being delivered in Italian. Rev. Caterino is well-known here, having at one time been pastor of the former chapel.

Several visiting pastors assisted with the service. Rev. William Voorhis, D. D., of the Eddington Presbyterian Church, made the invocation; the Scripture being read by Rev. H.
W. Hathaway, executive secretary of the Presbytery of Philadelphia North, who also made the prayer.

The forming of the church organization was in charge of the Rev. John H. Lee, D. D., chairman of the National Mission, Board of the Philadelphia Presbytery North, and pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Germantown.

The session of the new church is composed of: Rev. Andrew G. Solla, moderator; Dominic Rago, Thomas S.
Harper, John Zanni, Isaac Jones and Sebastian Ingolia, elders.

There were six received into membership at the conclusion of the service, and Sacrament of Holy Communion was observed.

Service was also marked by special musical selections by the choir, and congregational singing.

UNJUSTIFIED CRITICISM

The modern athlete is universally condemned for being mercenary. He is accused of caring less for the victory than for the "laurels," and the "laurels" must be of greater intrinsic or monetary value than a vegetable wreath. As some view the modern athlete he is no longer a sportsman but businessman selling his athletic prowess.

Professionalism in athletics has not stopped short of the sand lot, the college stadium and the high school athletic field. Players in the home town baseball teams play for a regular wage instead of for the old into-community rivalry, and college athletes trade their services for tuitions and even salaries. However this commercializing of sportsmanship is not new with this generation. In "The Idler" of May 21, 1758, Dr. Samuel Johnson discussed with due lamentations and caustic criticism the same matter. Commenting on the feat of a lady who wagered she could ride a horse a thousand miles in as many hours and won he said:

"There was once a time when wreaths of bays or oak were considered as recompenses equal to the most wearisome labours and terrific dangers, and when the miseries of long marches and stormy seas were at once driven from the remembrance by the fragrance of a garland.

"But fate reserved her (the betting equestrienne) for a more enlightened age, which has discovered leaves and flowers to be transitory things; which considers profit as the end of honour; and rates the event of every undertaking only by the money that is gained or lost."

So the modern athlete is but emulating his forebears. And there is this additional thing to say in defense of commercialized sports: The spectator portion of the population usually patronizes that in which it is interested. It is reasonable to believe that the spectator of this day and age, who pays for his sports, is a greater lover of athletics than was the Grecian onlooker, who rewarded his athletes with a garland of weeds.

OLD MEN

Georges Clemenceau, "Tiger" of France will soon celebrate his eighty-eighth birthday. Paul von Hindenburg, president of Germany will soon observe his eighty-second. Both men have long passed the traditional age of three score years and ten, yet to neither is his strength "labor and sorrow," as the Psalmist would suggest.

Clemenceau, the war premier, has retired, it is true, to his little white house by the sea. But from that retreat his words and his ideas still flash forth with all the fire of youth. Von Hindenburg, the former field marshal who drove the Russians out of East Prussia, then took command at the western front, withdrew for a while from the public eye. Then he emerged again to assume the arduous duties of heading a young republic. Most men who attain 80 or more are old in mind and in body. But these two appear to be old only in years.

Even the man who tells his wife she is the queen still wants to be the ace.

The Chinese are reported to want wild west movies. Let's send them all we've got.

LIVE

where you work

Many people employed in Bristol are commuting to and from their work each day. This means an unnecessary expense and a waste of time. They must leave home earlier and return later than if they lived in the town where they are employed. They have less time for pleasure and less time to spend with their families than if they resided here.

Why commute?

Bristol as a place of residence offers every opportunity to be found in a large city. There are paved streets, sanitary sewers, good schools and churches of every denomination; periodic collection of ashes and garbage, police protection and ample space for outdoor recreation.

Housing is adequate

Housing facilities are adequate to meet the needs of all. There are dwellings here which will meet the needs of almost every family. Big six room houses with all modern conveniences including front porches and rear yards. They rent as low as $25 per month, and are comparable in type to those in the larger cities renting for nearly twice the amount.

You're a part of the community

If you live in Bristol you are a part of the community. You are not lost in the crowds of a great city where often times your next door neighbor doesn't know you. Live in Bristol and participate in its affairs and you will find life much more worth the living.

Houses - Stores - Apartments

A young matron was tidying up a bookcase. Her youthful son was interested.

"Is that bookcase an antique, mother?" he asked.

"Yes, I suppose it would be called that," was the reply. "I got it the year I was graduated from school," she added.

"Oh, then it must be an antique," was her young hopeful's decision.

A little nonsense now and then makes news of the best of men.

Another good back exercise is afforded by a husband who reads several Sunday papers.

While men are busy looking their age, the girls are just as busy overlooking theirs.

Heard in a local barber shop: "You're next, lady."

"Oh, not just yet! I'm just looking about a bit. I may be back later."

It's all right to entertain ideas, but it's better to give them a good stiff workout.

Everything seems to get delayed in the mail, except bills.

Better Transportation Service for Lower Bucks County

The Delaware River Coach Company has begun operating bus service between Morrisville and Torresdale, supplementing and broadening the trolley service.

Comfortable, safe, speedy buses and courteous attendants will make this new service popular, we are sure.

Transportation service is now being given parts of Bristol and Croydon that heretofore have been without it.

The number of buses in operation will be increased in the near future, and every effort will be made to make the service fit the needs of the communities.

At present buses leave Morrisville for Torresdale at 5 minutes before every odd hour from 6.55 A. M. to 8.55 P. M., the last bus leaving at 10.45 P. M.

The first bus for Morrisville leaves Bath and Otter Streets, Bristol, at 6.25 A. M., 8.08 A. M., and then every two hours. Last bus at 10.08 P. M. From Torresdale buses will leave at 15 minutes before every even hour, from 7.45 A. M. to 9.45 P. M.

The fare from Morrisville to Torresdale is 60 cents. Passengers may ride between any point in Croydon and any point in Bristol for 10c, and between upper Tullytown and Bristol for 10c.

Time cards will be printed later and posted in convenient places.

Stimson Ready to Reply on Cuba

Secretary of State Stimson (right), has notified Senator Borah, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, that he is ready to appear before the committee and tell them all that he knows about conditions in Cuba under the administration of President Machado (left), who it has been alleged has gripped the island republic in a fist of iron. Machado's accusers claim that he has inaugurated a veritable reign of terror throughout the island in order to prevent any opposition to his rule.

DODGE CAR SALES GAIN IS SUBSTANTIAL ONE

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—"The Restoration of Dodge Brothers Prestige" was the subject of an earnest talk by Walter P. Chrysler to the executives of the Dodge Brothers organization on the occasion of the completion of the first year of Chrysler ownership of the vast Dodge Properties.

Mr. Chrysler pointed out that under the management of the Chrysler organization, the Dodge Brothers Six has shown a gain in sales 57% greater than that of the former Victory Six in the year before Chrysler acquired Dodge. The increase in Dodge Brothers truck, bus and coach business for the same period has also been substantial, Mr. Chrysler said.

In this first year of Chrysler ownership of Dodge Brothers, plant efficiency has been greatly increased under the direction of K. T. Keller, vice-president in charge of all Chrysler Motors manufacturing and general manager of Dodge Brothers. Engineering design, quality of materials and craftsmanship has been further improved with a corresponding increase in the value of the product. The great Dodge Brothers dealer organization, always one of the strongest in the industry, has grown still stronger.

Much of this growth in volume and in prestige, Mr. Chrysler attributes to the restoration of the policies established in the business fifteen years ago by John and Horace Dodge, and to the re-establishment of the name of Dodge Brothers in the motor car markets of the world.

"Under the ownership which preceded Chrysler, there appeared a tendency to get away from the name of Dodge Brothers, and from the prestige for value, dependability and mechanical excellence which that name had so long carried," said Mr. Chrysler. "While the company was still known as Dodge Brothers, its cars were known as the Victory Six, the Standard Six and the Senior Six. The trucks, buses and motor coaches manufactured by the company were sold under the name of Graham Brothers.

"To the Chrysler organization, our purchase of these great properties brought three assets of incalculable value—the vast and fine manufacturing facilities in these splendid plants, the soundly established and aggressive organization of Dodge dealers, and the name of Dodge Brothers.

"In my judgment the greatest of these was the 14-year prestige of the Dodge Brothers name. We could have reproduced the brick, mortar and machinery of the manufacturing plants. Conceivably, we might in time have duplicated in the marketing of a fine product the prestige of the Dodge dealer organization. But only to Dodge

ILL 10 YEARS; KONJOLA WON!

Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble Quickly Routed By New and Different Medicine

MRS. PRISCILLA KOCHERT

"For the past ten years I was the helpless victim of stomach trouble and rheumatism," said Mrs. Priscilla Kochert, 128 Lehman street, Lebanon, Penna. "After every meal I was subject to spells of nervous indigestion. I lived on a diet and as a result I became weak and run-down in general. The rheumatism settled in my knees and feet, causing extreme pain. I was unable to sleep or enjoy life.

"Konjola did just as I was told it would do. It went to the source of my troubles, cleansing and invigorating my whole system. Soon it had restored my digestion and made it possible for me to enjoy a good meal without distress. Rheumatic pains grew fainter and fainter, and then, like magic, disappeared completely. That is why I wish to praise Konjola to all the world."

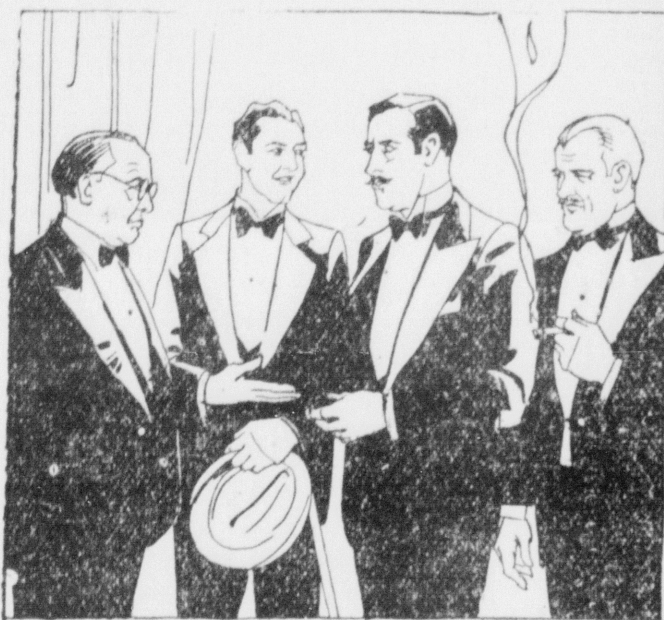

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

THE HOME TOWNERS

BY JOHN LEARY PELTRET

FROM WARNER BROS. ALL TALKING VITAPHONE PICTURE
...BASED ON THE COMEDY BY GEORGE M. COHANE...

SYNOPSIS—Arnold and Bancroft were boyhood chums. Arnold invites Bancroft to be best man and to bring his wife.

CHAPTER II

AFTER dinner the two old friends sat down to talk things over. Bancroft finds that Arnold has a perfect set of servants. He tells him that won't last long with a wife around. Bancroft teases his old chum about remaining a bachelor all these years, and then to have suddenly made up his mind to marry, tells him he don't know when he is lucky. He knows Arnold is wealthy.

TALK turns to Beth Calhoun, the girl. Bancroft finds out she is only twenty-one. Arnold is approaching fifty. Taking advantage of their long friendship, Bancroft tells Arnold he ought to have his head examined. Arnold says he has fought his way to the top in New York and ought to know what he is doing. This all passes in the spirit of banter.

IT soon develops that Beth's brother, Wally, is working for Arnold. Started at $60 a week, now getting $15,000 a year. Also it is revealed that it was through Wally that Arnold met Beth. Case of love at first sight. Arnold asserts Wally is one of the brightest young men in the Street and earns his pay. Bancroft begins to have suspicions about the situation.

THE wedding is to be on the following Monday. Arnold expects Beth and her father and mother the next day. They have been spending some months at Arnold's cottage in Florida. Bancroft, when he learns this, is sure that there is something very wrong with the picture. He determines to delve further in the matter of the Calhoun family from the bride-to-be right down the line.

Brothers and to a business built upon the principles of integrity, progressiveness and fine craftsmanship could there belong the public approval and the prestige which attach to the name of Dodge Brothers.

"That is why we immediately revived the original Dodge Brothers emblem, restoring to Dodge Brothers products that sterling sign of quality, dependability and value. That is why our first Chrysler-engineered Dodge car is named the Dodge Brothers Six. That is why we have given to our trucks, buses and coaches the name of their makers—Dodge Brothers. That is why every Dodge product, no matter what its model name, carries also the name of Dodge Brothers.

"This grand old name is the greatest thing that came with the acquisition of Dodge Brothers and, under Chrysler management, I firmly believe it shall go steadily forward to greater and greater eminence. With your cooperation and with that of our fine dealer body, I confidently predict that the name of Dodge Brothers will enjoy in the future a prestige even greater than was ever imagined by the founders of this great manufacturing institution."

"MAURETANIA WILL NOT REGAIN RECORD"—YARROW

By Charles A. Smith

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Oct. 1.—No matter how hard she may try, the 22-year-old crack British liner Mauretania will never recover the trans-Atlantic speed record wrested from her recently by the German vessel Bremen.

Sir Alfred Yarrow, veteran British shipping expert and inventor of the world-famous marine boiler bearing his name, is the authority for this statement, which does much to destroy the illusion now prevalent in Britain that the Mauretania is capable of beating the German giant.

"I cannot see how the Mauretania can be expected to beat the Bremen's record," Sir Alfred said in an interview with International News Service today. "Put it this way: I am eighty-seven. How could I be expected to race a man much younger than myself?"

"The Mauretania, I believe, gave of her best when she recently crossed the Atlantic within four hours of the Bremen's record. The Bremen, however, may be expected to do much better. As her machinery gets down to its bearings she will undoubtedly be able to improve on her first trips."

Sir Alfred declared he does not believe ship owners will lay down other ships to beat the Bremen's record. "Undoubtedly other ships could be built to improve upon existing results. But it is really worth while to build for these enormous speeds, which are very costly in power and upkeep, when one can foresee that those people who are in a great hurry to get from London to New York, and vice versa, will undoubtedly in twenty years' time or less, be able to fly across the Atlantic to a definite time-table?"

"People who are not in a hurry will not mind spending one day more on the Atlantic at a reduced cost and without the discomfort of the vibration of vessels which go at an excessively high speed," he opined.

ception, foresaw that if game was to increase, certain areas in the Commonwealth would have to be set aside as game refuges. In 1905, a game refuge law was passed and the first refuge in a system which has grown to magnificent proportions was established in Clinton County. The success of this refuge resulted not only from the setting aside of an actual sanctuary where no hunting whatever was permitted, but also from the creation of public hunting grounds completely surrounding the sanctuary area.

As a result of a law passed in 1905, protecting the black bear, this magnificent animal has become abundant in the wilder sections. Pennsylvania was the first state to recognize in this creature a relatively harmless and at the same time thrilling game animal. Pennsylvania is considered today as one of the leading bear states of the Union. In protecting bears, steel traps, dead falls, pits, and snares were declared illegal.
